

SERC Reliability Corporation announces a national search for Independent Directors to serve on its Board led by CarterBaldwin Executive Search.

Charlotte, N.C. – (March 30, 2020) – SERC’s mission is the effective and efficient reduction of risks to the reliability and security of the bulk power system. To achieve this mission, SERC maintains a diverse team of experts across numerous disciplines in order to address the complex, evolving, and dynamic challenges facing the grid. SERC also partners with the best and brightest individuals from both the power industry and the federal government to understand and address the challenges facing the grid.

SERC is one of only six companies across North America that is responsible for this important work under Federal Energy Regulatory Commission approved delegation agreements with the North American Electric Reliability Corporation, and is the largest such Regional Entity based on net energy for load. SERC is specifically responsible for the reliability and security of the electric grid across the southeastern and central regions of the United States.

SERC is undergoing a transformation as a Regional Entity. SERC recently expanded its footprint to include the entire state of Florida as well as a number of entities that were part of the former Southwest Power Pool Regional Entity. SERC is now implementing a significant governance restructuring, which includes transitioning its existing Board Executive Committee into a full, hybrid Board made up of Stakeholder and Independent Directors.

For the first time in its history, the organization is seeking three Independent Directors to serve on the SERC Board effective January 1, 2021. The addition of Independent Directors and transition to a hybrid Board allows for stakeholder engagement while adding independent balance, to continue to ensure SERC is a credible and trusted expert organization for its stakeholders.

Chris Guiney, Partner, Energy & Infrastructure Practice Leader, CarterBaldwin will lead the search. For more information, he can be reached via e-mail at cguiney@carterbaldwin.com.
